

MEDICARE GIVEAWAYS!

No, not to the seniors enrolled in Medicare, silly! To the private insurance companies. Yet another GAO report has found yet another contracting scam that BushCo is ignoring.

Private insurance companies participating in Medicare have been allowed to keep tens of millions of dollars that should have gone to consumers, and the Bush administration did not properly audit the companies or try to recover money paid in error, Congressional investigators say in a new report.

What's remarkable about this though, is it is at least the third incidence where—when faced with accounting improprieties from a corporation working with the government—the Bush Administration refuses to ask for the money back.
