

WHEN YOU BREAK FOR LUNCH AT 3PM...

You gotta believe you're going to be here for a while. I'm hearing estimates that this may go till midnight.

Joy.

We're still waiting in the RBC members to return. Remember—they had lunch together, and there's the sense that they're close on at least FL, though probably not MI. But there's also the question of whether they decide the FL challenge before deciding the MI one. After all, if they seat MI at full strength, they'd have to seat FL at full strength ... wouldn't they?

I'll do a little bit more live-blogging as we go forward this PM, since the feds sound like they're crummy. Let me know if that's still true, once we get started again, alright?

Update: Just a heads up. Things are likely to get contentious here (that is, at the RBC meeting) this afternoon. So in an effort to keep things here (at EW/FDL) polite, we're going to moderate threads as we would do at FDL.
