

MEET THE BLOGGERS AND SENDKARLROVETOJAIL.COM

Well that was fun. A replay of the premiere of Meet the Bloggers should be up here shortly. [Update: It's both there now and at left.] The highlight of the piece, IMO, is that Cenk got the name of the Sargeant at Arms in: Bill Livingood. How cool would it be if a guy named "Livingood" walked up to Karl Rove and put him in handcuffs? It's like something right out of Dickens. I decided yesterday that, in addition to putting Rove in a shipping container on the Mall in front of Congress (don't worry—we'll outfit it and air condition it) until he agrees to testify, Congress ought to contract with Blackwater to help Mr. Livingood do the arrest. After all, they'll do anything for money, right?

Meanwhile, BNF has a petition drive up so you can encourage HJC to respond to being blown off in a timely and forceful manner.

I've got to go pack now so I can get a plane to Netroots Nation. I'll poke my head in occasionally, but I expect to be pretty busy for the next several days. bmaz will have the keys, so maybe ya'll can discuss whether or not Brett Favre should continue to start for the Packers.

[See the SendKarlRoiveToJail video here.]