So I was musing today that someone better keep count of all of Sarah Palin's lies. And just as I was musing thusly, I learned that ThinkProgress is already keeping track, at least of the lie that even Howie Kurtz calls a whopper, the Bridge to Nowhere lie.

Good thing they jumped on this count: the McCain campaign is already up to 19 different retellings of the Bridge to Nowhere lie. These numbers are going to pile up.

Here's where they're keeping track—so if you spy the lie, make sure they've caught it. It also lists the 9 different times (as of Monday at 6 PM) a neutral source has debunked the lie.

Update: link to TP's tracking document fixed.
