

DOJ IS SILENT THAT ENRIQUE TARRIO IS A “FRIEND OF STONE”

There’s something curious about the Proud Boys trial.

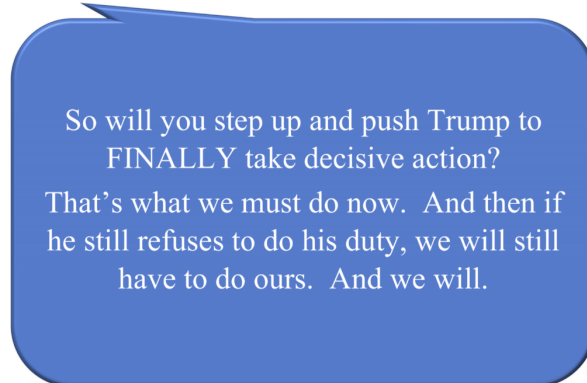

Thus far, DOJ has made no mention of the Friends of Stone thread that Enrique Tarrío was part of, along with Alex Jones, Owen Shroyer, Ali Alexander, and Kellye SoRelle, as well as the rat-fucker himself.

That’s true even though it was mentioned repeatedly at Stewart Rhodes’ trial. DOJ submitted some texts Rhodes sent, including one seeming to ask Stone to get Trump to invoke the Insurrection Act.

11/8/2020 12:05:41 PM

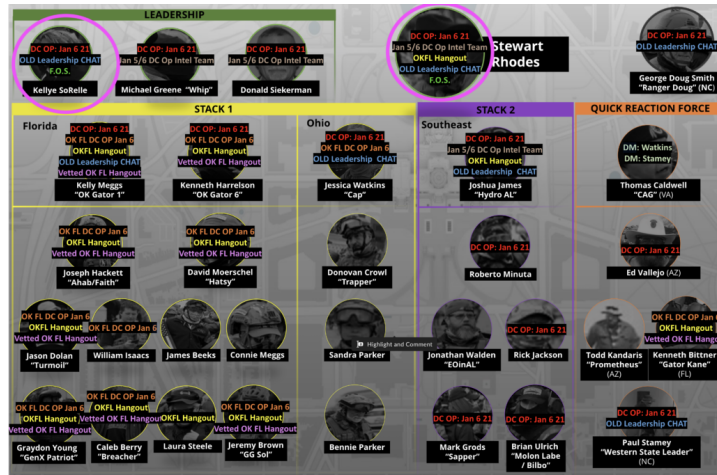

From: Stewart Rhodes

To: F.O.S.

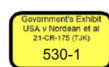

1.S.345.172

And DOJ used those comms as part of their graphic showing the ties between all the alleged co-conspirators.

I find the silence about Tarrío’s involvement in the FOS list especially interesting given some Telegram texts submitted yesterday at trial.

In a thread of Telegram texts showing how the Proud Boys went from being called out by Donald Trump to planning for actions in DC, it included an exchange between Tarrío and Jeremy Bertino from November 7, showing their response to the media calling the election for Joe Biden.

Text Messages – Tarrío and Jeremy Bertino

Nov. 7, 2020

Time	Name	Message
12:36:20 PM	Jeremy Bertino	Bro
12:36:27 PM	Jeremy Bertino	Wtf happened
12:37:28 PM	Enrique Tarrío	?
12:38:03 PM	Jeremy Bertino	They called it. Now we have to mobilize. Should we roll out to the state houses?
12:38:17 PM	Enrique Tarrío	Yes.
12:38:26 PM	Enrique Tarrío	I'll be available after Sunday

Bertino immediately says, “should we roll out to the state houses?”

“Yes,” Tarrío says.

At the time, Ali Alexander, another participant on the Friends of Stone list, was working on a series of events at which mobs intimidated election workers.

On the 8th, Bertino informed Tarrío, "we[']re going to Raleigh this afternoon."

Tarrío instructs, "Make sure...no colors," meaning not to wear Proud boy yellow and black.

"Why not?" Bertino asks.

"The campaign asked us to not wear colors to these events," says the guy whose relationship with Donald Trump's rat-fucker goes back years.

Defense attorneys renewed their fight yesterday, without success, to prevent prosecutors from introducing Trump's Stand Back and Stand By comment. It's now officially an exhibit in a seditious conspiracy case, along with Trump's December 19 tweet announcing January 6 that has been introduced in scores of January 6 cases.

But thus far, DOJ has made no move to mention Tarrío's tie with Trump's rat-fucker. Or to explain whether the Proud Boys were coordinating these efforts to intimidate election workers with Stone's protégé, Alexander.