

YOU HAVE A RIGHT TO SPEEDY TRIAL ... UNLESS THEY NEED TO TORTURE YOU FIRST

Judge Lewis Kaplan has basically concluded that if the government can persuasively argue that government believed the torture necessary at the time, then they can torture a detainee as long as he still has intelligence value without infringing on the detainee's right to a speedy trial.