

GOVERNOR-APPOINTED PANEL CLEARS GOVERNOR OF WRONG- DOING

The Personnel investigation into the firing of Walt Monegan—the one conducted by three governor appointees—has cleared Sarah Palin of any wrongdoing.

Since it's almost certainly too little too late to help the McCain-Palin ticket, I'll review the reports sometime after we elect a new president. But this ought to explain how the Personnel board came to the contradictory conclusion as Stephen Branchflower did:

These findings differ from those of the Branchflower Report because
