

IT IS BITTER TEA THAT INVOLVES YOU SO: A SERMON ON HOPE

People often mistake hope for a feeling, but it's not. It's a mental discipline, an attentional practice that you can learn. Like any such discipline, it's work that takes time, which you fail at, succeed, improve, fail at again, and build over years inside yourself.